DESIGN WITH NATURE

Plastic has such attractive, useful properties that it has become the world's most widely used material. We need plastic in environmental technologies, to prevent climate change, in medicine, and also for everyday products. Plastic itself may be the alternative to plastic: it can help the environment, if it is included in a "non-disposable", intelligent process:

- elimination of disposable plastics linked to the "single-use" concept
- design of durable objects in plastics salvaged from the land and sea
- increase in proportions of plastic recycled
- engagement with the scientific, industrial, design and retail world to add value to plastic raw materials by giving them a second life.

Made for nature

Reuse, don't waste.

Sustainable development means believing in a future that's not yet here. Designing an environmentally responsible product means the ability to integrate systems, raw materials, transformation industries, designers, producers, logistics firms and distribution chains. It means a different way of designing and distributing, and implies a focus on health and nature. It is a cultural process, an opportunity to make a difference every day, offered to genuinely aware people, beyond mere slogans.

What is needed is a new Design, a discipline that concentrates on lands and territories, that acts intelligently, reducing the environmental footprint of processes and products.

With Circle, we are creating a cycle good for people and nature. Circle is not just a collection of products made from recycled plastics: it is an entire system, which combines the recycling of water and detergent bottles after use, the start-up of a chain which cleans them and reduces them to flakes, and resolves a series of technical and design problems to enable the use of these recycled flakes for moulding new objects. There are also educational benefits: Circle makes people aware that their own good practices are important for the environment and the future.

We recycle and give new beauty to reused plastic materials.

LONG-TERM INNOVATION

It all began in 1912, when Enrico Guzzini drew on his experience abroad to create exquisite objects in ox horn. In 1938, another Guzzini generation introduced Plexiglas into the manufacture of items for the home. In the early 1960s, the new idea was the use of moulding acrylics, followed in the 1980s by the first two-colour household articles, produced by dual injection moulding. The major innovation of gas-assisted injection moulding came in the 1990s. Innovation was extended further with the introduction of the three-color effect and the subsequent investigation of new and recycled (2018) plastics and their infinite potentials.

Our design practice is one of a community culture and progress, implemented in relationships with the top names in world design.

Quality is health

Evolution has been and still is driven by people, a community of innovators, sharing the same innate passion for the future. We implement a two-level guarantee, covering both the origin of the materials and the controls made throughout the production chain. Our company is certified by the Istituto Italiano Plastici (Italian Plastics Institute), which awards its MPI mark to certify that plastics are approved for contact with foods, guaranteeing consumers the very best quality and safety standards.

SPECIAL RECYCLED PLASTIC

Tierra, made for nature

design
Pio&Tito Toso

Tierra, the new collection designed by Pio&Tito Toso is a revolution in tactile appeal and style and expresses all the know-how of a company that has always processed plastics, and that now does so conserving the environment and creating beauty for the table with patented totally recycled and recyclable materials with upgraded functional performances.

The design and colours evoke pottery thrown on the wheel, for an attractive, charming hand-made look, inspired by the warmth of the earth and nature.

Impossible without the 3 color secret

design
Pio&Tito Toso

Pio and Tito Toso, exponents of the Murano glassmaking tradition have already successfully met the challenge of plastic polymers with the Grace Collection, now outdo themselves with "Le Murrine": a collection that embraces all the potential offered by Guzzini's exclusive 3 COLOR TECH. "Le Murrine" is the culmination of extensive formal research which explored the technological performance of plastics from a totally new angle. The result is a unique and refined product in acrylic, completely Made in Italy, which makes the beauty and effects of the artistic Murano glassmaking tradition available to everyone, taking collectibles for home decor to new levels.

Creativity and research to reveal the fine features of the material

design
Guzzini Lab
Pio&Tito Toso

The artists and designers of Murano constantly put themselves to the test working with a noble and ancient material: glass. They are the creators of unique, astounding, almost unimaginable shapes and colors. Guzzini, along with Pio and Tito Toso, took up the challenge and succeeded. Together they created Grace, a collection of extremely precious, unique and inimitable objects, like glass itself. Proof once more that the quality and fame of the "made in Italy" brand are realities and not simple marketing.

KITCHEN ACTIVE DESIGN

Today consumers are asking us to analyse functions and transform them into specialisations: to be useful, objects must facilitate everyday actions, support people's passions and become tools for putting them into action. On this principle, we have launched Kitchen Active Design a project for the development, design and production of utensils that bear in mind the real needs of people who bring passion and curiosity to the kitchen. A series of objects that make preparing and conserving food easier, safer and faster, with more rational, efficient kitchen organisation.

Coffee, tea and infusions are traditional rituals in all cultures, with their time and peculiarities, even when urgency leaves no time for that moment of relaxation and pleasure. But tea, coffee and infusions, as all rituals, need the right instruments. Guzzini has always attached great importance to this topic in its collections, trying to propose beautiful, high quality objects.

Design on the go

design
Spalvieri & Del Ciotto

How can a company with more than 100 years of history still keep dynamic and up to date? By monitoring changes in society and lifestyles and transforming them into products, by adopting new technologies and styles, and by designing articles destined to set new trends, especially in terms of "food on the go".
